

A WELL FOUGHT FIRE.

SPALDING STABLE AND WAREHOUSE A THREATENING FIRE.

The Fire Confined to the Building in which Started. And Under Control in an Hour.

Shortly after two o'clock Monday morning the clanking of the fire bell awakened the whole town to find a threatening fire in progress. The fire was in the stable of the Spalding warehouse in the rear of the garage on York Street. It had gained much headway when first seen.

Allan Plank discovered the fire and with help of his neighbors soon got a gravity stream of water on fire. F. E. Cremer sleeping in the rear part of the residence of his father-in-law Wallace Ziegler on East Middle Street was awakened by the light and running to the engine house gave the alarm.

It was quite an interval of time before the fire apparatus could be taken to the scene and streams of water thrown on the fire and the entire building, stable and warehouse was one furiously burning mass by that time. The lively stable on the corner of the alley was threatened, the garage and other near by buildings.

The Gettysburg firemen began their magnificent work apparently against odds and doggedly fought the fire, covering all threatened buildings with streams of water and throwing water upon the fire and as the minutes sped slowly came the realization that the fire was under control and in an hour's time it was out.

The cause of the fire is unknown. It caught in the hay mow of the Spalding stable. In the building at the time were seven horses and one mule.

Those first at fire found the fire falling from the hay mow to the floor below and many of the horses were crazy with fright. Charles Spalding rushed in and loosened some of the horses but with the usual animal characteristic they could not be gotten out. Mr. Spalding's shirt took fire, and he grabbed up a blanket to put around himself and covering the heads of the horses with blanket succeeded in getting them out. Five horses were rescued and Dr. E. D. Hudson succeeded in getting out the mule. One of the horses was in a blaze as he came out of the stable. Two horses were burnt, the Rubrician colt and a black mare five years old. The mule and another young horse were placed in Dr. Hudson's hospital at once and treated and it is possible that one or both have been burned to such an extent as may prove fatal.

The warehouse adjoining the stable occupied by Clifford C. Bream on ground floor with his farming implements and on second floor as a storage house by Mr. Spalding for buggies and wagons was furiously burning before streams of water were going and it was found impossible to save any of the contents of building. At one time the fence of Dr. John A. Swope was on fire, and the roof of the lively stable on the alley and a corner of the garage, and the handsome home of Edward Wolf was threatened.

The work of the firemen can not be too highly praised. The fight was begun against odds and was intelligently and persistently made on all sides until the victory was theirs.

Mr. Spalding estimates his loss at $3,000 to $3,500 on building and contents of warehouse, buggies, wagons, etc. There is a total of about $2,500 insurance on building and contents. The loss of Clifford C. Bream is estimated at about $700 on farming implements of all kinds and repairs, with insurance on same of about $500.

The scene of the fire was a very excited one for awhile. The garage contained seven automobiles and second story parts of buggies. The autos were hurried out, the owners making their appearance, getting them to other parts of the town and much of the contents of the building was carried across the street to the pavement of St. James Lutheran church.

There is just one thing to be noted about this fire, the engine of the Gettysburg Fire Company did not act with its usual efficiency. Just exactly what was the trouble did not appear and the engine is being overhauled to discover the cause. The Gen. Meade Sibley is twenty two years old and engines are not built to last forever and it is possible that it may be developing faults of wearing and age.

If such is the case there is but one thing to do, this town must have a fire engine of the highest efficiency. If the present engine needs re-building and this is the best course to follow, then the town should hire an engine and as soon as it arrives send the Gen. Meade to the factory to be re-built. If the wearing has reached a point where it would be better economy to buy a new engine, then the present one had better be turned in on a trade and a brand new one obtained. The Fire Company and Town Council should have expert advice on the situation and then act at once.

PLAY BALL.

Fairfield, July 22.—On Saturday July 20 our base ball team went to Arendtsville where they crossed bats with the strong team of that town and we are more than elated over the result, which was 6 to 5 in our favor.

This victory is a matter of more than ordinary gratification to our boys and their host of admirers, inasmuch as the Arendtsville team up until Saturday had won every game they took part in this spring. However they got into too fast company when they came in contact with Fairfield. Their Mr. Funt was "dead easy" for our boys, while our "Teddy" had their boys guessing all the time.

We are all looking forward with pleasure to Saturday July 27th, when at 3 o'clock that afternoon we will have the Arendtsville boys with us and they will have one more chance to show whether or not Mr. Funt is injured in the ribs.

On evening of July 27th there will be a festival held here for the benefit of our base-ball team. All are cordially invited to come help make it a success.

STARTLING SUDDEN DEATHS.

REV. E. H. TRUE DIES QUICKLY FROM HEART TROUBLE.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mertz Passes Away—Miss Mary McAllister Succumbs—Other Deaths.

Swift, and, as far as mortals know, painless sudden death visited this community rounding out lives with a startling shock to those who are left to feel such blows.

Rev. Edward H. True, rector of the Episcopal Memorial Church of the Prince of Peace of this place, passed from the full vigor of health to the chill of death in the space of fifteen minutes on last Thursday night.

After the marriage of Rev. and Mrs. True on last June 4th they came here, first staying at Hotel Gettysburg until they could take possession of the house on Lincoln St., which had been rented. About ten days before his death their goods arrived and they began the unpacking and fixing of the house. On Friday of the week before they had eaten their first meal in the new house.

Rev. True was delighted with his new surroundings and had been working assiduously to get things in order. On the Sunday previous he held two services here, then drove to Hanover and held a service there, returning the same day. He had been busy during the early part of the week. He was taking much pleasure in his garden and on Thursday spent part of the day there, and made four trips into town for his needs.

After eleven o'clock he was seized with a shortness of breath and was helped to the window for a breath of air. A call was sent for a physician, but before Drs. Walter H. and Alexander O'Neal could reach him he had expired. He returned to his bed from the window and in a few minutes had ceased to breathe. He was in his 72nd year.

Rev. True was a native of State of New York. He was educated at the Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn., and then attended the Episcopal Divinity Seminary at the same place. His first marriage was to a Middle-town lady, who died several years ago. He held charges during his life at Germantown, Baltimore, New Rochelle, N. Y., and Brooklyn. About three years ago he was assigned to the Episcopal Church here, making many friends in the town and putting much energy into his work. It was through his labors entirely that the St. George's congregation of Hanover was formed.

On June 4th he was married to Mrs. Fritchey of Lancaster, Pa. Two sons survive, Clarence True, a prominent architect, and Herbert True of New York City. Two brothers and three sisters survive, Frederick and Charles True and Miss Elizabeth True of Washington, Mrs. Hemphill and Miss True of South Carolina.

The funeral services were held on Monday morning at 11 o'clock in the Prince of Peace Memorial Church. The services were in charge of Bishop Darlington, who officiated at his wedding in June, who made an address, speaking of the great worth of the deceased as a man, a citizen and a minister, of his earnest spirit as a worker and his zeal in all his undertakings. Other clergymen assisting in the services were Arch-Deacon McMillan of Carlisle, Rev. Dorwart of Newport, Pa., Rev. Collins of Chambersburg and Rev. Shero of Lancaster. The body rested in state in the church from 9 a. m. until 3.05 p. m. when it was taken to the train on the journey to the last resting place at Middletown, Conn. The pall-bearers were the vestrymen of the church here and in Hanover, Hon. Wm. McClean, John M. Warner, Dr. Alex. H. O'Neal, H. D. Sheppard, J. G. Greenaway and Mr. Shultz. Those attending from a distance were the two sons, Clarence and Herbert True and two sisters of Mrs. True, her twin sister, Mrs. Dorwart of Newport, Pa., and Mrs. Fritchey of Lancaster, Pa.

Resolutions.

The Bishop and clergy of the diocese of Harrisburg, assembled in the vestry of the Memorial Church of the Prince of Peace, in Gettysburg, July 22, 1907, desire to put on record an expression of their feeling of personal loss in the sudden and unexpected death of the Rector of the Parish, Rev. Edward Hyde True, on Thursday, July 18th, 1907.

Rev. Mr. True, during his brief ministry in this diocese, has accomplished a great and lasting work; a fitting close of the long and successful ministry in the Church of God.

Going to a parish much discouraged, by his zeal and earnestness he has built it up, both financially and spiritually.

At great expense of time and personal means, he inaugurated the new Mission Church at Hanover, which, through his untiring efforts, has been so well launched that it has been made independent within the short space of a year.

It is with peculiar fitness that he who so loved this Memorial of dead heroes, should, as a soldier of Christ, a brave, true and loyal defender of the faith, lay down the weapons of the spiritual combat in this place.

Our sympathies go out to his widow and to the members of his family, in this hour of their bereavement.

The ministers of Gettysburg at a meeting passed the following Resolution.

By the death of our friend and Brother Rev. Edward Hyde True, we have lost one whom we had learned to love and respect as a high-minded, noble, hearted minister of Christ, a courteous gentleman and a genial companion. Deeply deploring his loss, we record our esteem for one whom we shall greatly miss and whose memory we shall fondly cherish. We extend our sympathy to his widow and his friends, and to the congregation to which he so faithfully ministered, with the prayer for our Heavenly Father's blessing upon them in the time of their sorrow.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mertz, widow of Adam Mertz, departed this life last Tuesday at the age of 82 years, 7 mos. and 4 days. Six months ago she slipped and fell on the ice in her yard and broke her right arm and quite recently by a fall broke her left arm. Her health recently had been frail and she was attending these accidents helped to bring about the inevitable. Her husband died many years ago and to her was left the care of a large family. She was a good mother, a good neighbor and a good woman, held in highest esteem by all her neighbors and acquaintances. The funeral was held on last Friday, the services being conducted by Rev. Dr. Jacob A. Clutz with interment in the Evergreen cemetery. She leaves five children, two sons and three daughters, Adam Mertz, of Wilmington, Del., Herman Mertz, Misses Elizabeth, Lena and Emma Mertz of this place, all having the privilege of being with their mother in her last days.

Charles Miller, Dillsburg's oldest business man, died on July 17 aged 86 years, 7 months and 9 days. He ran the mill north of Dillsburg for over fifty years, becoming widely known and retired some years ago on account of advancing years, when his son became manager. He was the first to install the roller process in his part of the country. He leaves three sons and two daughters, Harry H. Miller, of Carlisle, and Daniel K. Miller, of Harrisburg, who at one time were proprietors of the Hotel Gettysburg here, C. Milton Miller, of Dillsburg, Mrs. George Strayer, of Bermudian and Miss Amanda Miller at home. The funeral took place on last Saturday.

Samuel Shue, a son of Dr. Shue, formerly of East Berlin, and for many years an engineer on the Pennsylvania Railroad, was drowned in the Susquehanna river on July 6. He had gone to the river on a fishing trip and coroner's verdict was that he received a sunstroke or an attack of apoplexy and fell from the boat or shore. He leaves a wife and one son, Meredith Shue. He was a member of the Ridge Road church, Harrisburg. Five sisters survive, Mrs. Josephus Reigle, of Baltimore, Mrs. Phoebe Melhorn, Mrs. Sue Meredith and Mrs. Tillie Wagner, of Harrisburg, and Mrs. Beckie Wagner, of Steelton.

Noah Sheely, whose death was briefly announced in our last issue as having occurred on Monday, July 15, was born in 1838, one of the ten children of Jacob and Mary Hartman Sheely. In 1866 he married Miss Rebecca McIlvaine, of Union township, and they began housekeeping on the farm on which he died in Franklin township.

Mr. Sheely made his farm famous by reason of the magnificent apple orchard planted. He discovered the adaptability of the soil of the upland on the southern slope of the South Mountains for apple culture. His orchard in the fall was a sight to see, attracting visitors from all parts of the country. The culture of apples proved a very successful business, Mr. Sheely becoming a large land owner, possessing three large farms in Franklin township and several properties in Cashown.

Mr. Sheely's health began to fail about two years ago. He suffered with kidney trouble, had been to the city hospital several times and lost the sight of one eye.

The funeral on Thursday was held by Rev. Anthony, a United Brethren minister, whom the deceased had asked to take charge of the services. The interment was in the Arendtsville cemetery.

He leaves besides his wife, four sons and five daughters, Edward Sheely, of Chambersburg, Daniel, Robert and Andrew Sheely at home, Mrs. Edward Robert, of Cashown, Mrs. Charles Stockelager, of Philadelphia, Florence Alice and Hettie at home. Three brothers and one sister survive, Prof. Aaron Sheely, of this place, Ephraim Sheely, of Arendtsville, and Jacob Sheely, of Cashown, and Mrs. Catharine Raffensperger, of Bendersville.

James Becker, died suddenly at his home near McKnightstown on Tuesday morning of last week. He had been going about several days previously, but a severe case of beria developing he quickly succumbed. He had always had the appearance of enjoying perfect health and his untimely death in the flush of manhood, in his 33d year was a shock to every one who knew him. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Becker of McKnightstown and married a Miss Straubach, all of whom survive. He is also survived by one brother and four sisters, Paul Becker, Mamie, Rose, Annie at home and Stella in the south. The funeral was held by Rev. Father T. J. Crotty in St. Francis Xavier church on Friday morning, with interment in the Catholic Cemetery here.

A distressing accident occurred to the funeral cortege on the way from town. At the railroad crossing on Buford Ave. in Gettysburg, an auto ran into a conveyance containing members of the Becker family. The carriage was turned over and occupants thrown out. Miss Mamie Becker fell under the carriage and was somewhat bruised but all escaped serious injury. The Lord has called from us,

A kind and obedient friend, Taken from the hearts that loved him, To go and finish his mission end.

Oh dear friend how we'll miss you, Thou hast always been so kind, And your departing from us, We will always bear in mind.

We miss thy kind and willing hand, Thy love and earnest care, It is hard to be without thee, We miss thee every where.

Never will we forget thee, Nor thy kindness, nor thy love, And we trust to meet each other, In that beautiful home above.

Miss Mary McAllister, died on last Thursday evening at her home on Chambersburg St., in her 86th year. Until a few weeks ago she had borne her advancing years with ease. Up to time of her stroke about three weeks ago she was the same interesting conversationist she had been her whole life. The visit of the West Point Cadet to her the first week in May had been a most delightful one to her, recalling old memories of battle days and to a Compiler representative she talked for over two hours telling many interesting incidents. Her place of business has been a familiar institution for almost two generations, first as a grocery store, then later as a flower store. She had a love for flowers could was the first to engage here in the culture for sale and when flowers were to be found no where else Miss Mary was sure to have them. From her place came the finest flowers during Commencement that were hedged around the old time graduate after he had spoken. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church of this place. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon with services by Rev. D. W. Woods Jr. and interment in Evergreen Cemetery. Her death leaves but one of the four sisters remaining, Mrs. Catharine Sweeney, of Baltimore St., now in her 90th year.

John C. Miller, of Huntington township, died at the home of his brother-in-law Nathan Beitman on last Thursday. He was born in 1823. The funeral was held on Sunday Rev. L. M. Gardner conducting the services with interment in the York Springs Cemetery. Deceased was a bachelor. He is survived by a brother and a sister, Webb Miller of Latimore township and Mrs. Julia Ann Beamer of near Steelton.

Mrs. Emily Ann Timbers, colored died at her Cumberland township home on Sunday in her 85th year. She was a native of Virginia. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon with interment in colored graveyard. She leaves one son and one daughter, Andrew, of this place, and Lydia, of Philadelphia. She was the mother of the late Prof. Benj. Bird, of Prince Ann College, and of Samuel Bird.

WILLIAM EYLER'S CHANCES

FOR A COMMUTATION OF THE DEATH SENTENCE GOOD.

Death Warrant Withdrawn—The Board of Pardons Will Not Likely Decide Before September.

On last Wednesday, July 17, the application of William Eyerler was heard by the Board of Pardons for a commutation of the death sentence to imprisonment for life. William Eyerler was represented by William Hersh, Esq., and District Attorney John D. Keith, was present.

Applications of thirteen convicted murderers were before the Board of Pardons on the same day. The Eyerler case was the fourth or fifth heard.

Mr. Hersh presented his five reasons for a commutation, as follows:

1. The crime was committed while the prisoner was under the influence of liquor, without an acquaintance with the deceased, and the absence of actual malice, hatred, grudge or ill will, shows that the crime was without motive.

2. There is serious doubt whether the interval of time between the prisoner's entrance upon the scene and the commission of the offense, (covering as it did about three minutes) was not too short for such premeditation as to allow the prisoner in his condition of mind and influence as he no doubt was by the excessive use of intoxicants, to form the deliberate intent to kill.

3. The prior good conduct and excellent reputation of the prisoner, his recognized harmless disposition and quiet manners, preclude the depravity of heart and viciousness of mind, that would wantonly, maliciously and deliberately destroy human life.

4. As the prisoner was born and reared in ignorance, without moral training, educational advantages or religious influence, there is serious doubt indeed, as to whether he was really capable of realizing the nature and consequences of his act.

5. The numerous signed petitions and the large number of letters from representative citizens of the community in which he lived and in which the crime was committed, attest his previous good character and deficient mental abilities, and express the belief that the feeling and public sentiment is, that the ends of justice will be fully and adequately met by imprisonment.

Mr. Hersh then presented the petitions of citizens of Emmitsburg and Gettysburg in favor of a commutation, with about twenty-five letters to the same effect and made a brief argument.

The application was not opposed by the Commonwealth, Mr. Keith only addressing the Board on the matter of drunkenness, so that the exact facts concerning it could be understood.

While the Board gave no indication of what their final action may be, yet the chances of William Eyerler for a commutation of the death sentence seem hopeful. This view is based upon the fact that of the murder cases before the Board all were disposed of except the Eyerler case and all were dismissed except one other case. The reprieve of William Eyerler had been for one month, from June 25 to July 25 and Governor Stuart the same day entirely withdrew the death warrant. There will be no meeting of the Board of Pardons until in September and the indication are that no decision will be made until that time. The Board asked that the petitions and letters should not be read, giving the assurance that everything would be read and carefully considered before a decision was reached. If there was no ground for hope it is argued a negative decision would at once have been given, as in the other cases.

Old Soldier Returns.

Another old soldier who revisited Gettysburg last week to look again upon the scenes of the conflict of '63, was Wm. H. Savage, of Harward, Worcester Co., Mass. He was a sergeant in the 15th Mass. Regt. and was wounded on the 3rd day's fight in Pickett's charge. His colonel was killed on the 2nd day. There is a wonderful fascination in the battlefield to the old soldiers who saw the awful sacrifice here.

BRIGHT DAYS IN FAIR SICILY

VISIT TO THE FASCINATING GROTTO IN THE ROCKY SHORE.

Death of Nice Loving American Women Traveling—Disappointing bad Manners of the European.

The last letter of Mary Katherine was from Sicily and the one that follows is from the same point, Grand Hotel Castello A. Mare, Taormina.

Once more the sunshine is glorious, the sky cloudless sapphire and the sea a deep blue. I have been reading Sicilian history and learning a little of the wealth of mythological and historical facts in which Sicily abounds.

Yesterday I went to the grotto, beautiful caves on the shore in the solid rock. In one everything looked green, the most beautiful iridescent shades. The rocks are worn in all kinds of fantastic shapes by the waves. It was quite rough but we were able to get in and the place gives one a feeling of awe.

I can not describe the sound of the water rushing into the cavern. The place seemed peopled with all kinds of weird beings, laughing, moaning or crying. Then when the waves would sweep out again one saw about three feet of rock covered with coral and all sort of sea life. I am so sorry it was so rough we did not dare venture near enough for me to break off a bit of living coral and I was disappointed as I had built so much on bringing home a bit of coral gotten by my own hand.

The wind increased after we came out, in fact had to come out before I was ready as it was all the sailor could manage keeping the boat off the rocks. He then let the boat rock on the waves while I watched the waves like angry beasts dash up on the rocks only to break in spray high over our heads. In these grottoes the light comes up through the water causing very peculiar and beautiful effects, anyone diving into the water looks like silver.

The atmosphere is so clear, the mountains stand out with startling distinctness. The lizards are scuttling about everywhere and a large black snake was sunning himself on a cactus. Coming up the hill side I almost expected to see Pan himself. I saw a large flock of goats and heard the fluting of pipes nearby. By following the sound I discovered instead of Pan a ragged boy on the edge of a bluff fluting to the goats hanging like flies to the sides of the hill.

We go to Palermo Saturday. I am glad, while I like it here, the scenery is so beautiful but one does not want to stay so long in one place when there is so much to see. The pepper trees are such graceful things, some beautiful ones here.

We arrived at Palermo Saturday night but will first give you a little history of my last days at Taormina. I wrote of my trip to the grotto but forgot to tell that I captured alive sponge, one of the fine cup shaped variety. It is not a good one by any means, has dried out as hard as bone but soaking up will give the natural shape I think. The storm had washed it up.

The hotel filled up a few days before we left, a party from Egypt. Mrs. F. of the party is a nice looking woman, but the others looked like cooks and laundresses. I do wonder where the nice looking American women go. Such a lot of ordinary looking women as there were around Taormina. No wonder the people over here have such a poor opinion of us.

I am terribly disappointed in the French women. They have beautiful clothes but the way they walk and their table manners are awful. The Italians and French almost lie down on the table and gobble. It is nothing to see a beautifully gowned woman eat with her knife. The men are disgusting at table. I am speaking of Counts and Countesses. And stare, nothing like it. They will turn square around to stare.

An Austrian Count and Hungarian Marquis actions will give you a sample of the men here. The Count is about 24 I think, tall, slender, light hair, gray eyes, rather nice looking. The Marquis, short, dark, inky eyes, glossy black hair, carried his head like a turtle, possibly 30 years old. The Count asked some one if I could speak French, no, then they would learn English so they could talk with me. They followed me around like two poodles. One always kept guard. If I started out in short order both were trotting after. They never spoke or made eyes, simply trotted after and stared. Even changed their table for one next me. When I talked with any one they planted themselves down where they could stare. The day we left they planted themselves on the terrace and watched my window and were out to see me off. Fancy two American gentlemen making such asses of themselves.

The scenery along the railroad part way to Palermo is beautiful. At Catania one has a good idea of the treacherous heart Etna has, lava everywhere, great boulders piled high. The stream of 1882 came down by the north end of the town and poured into the sea. It does not seem possible that mass of melted stone could reach there across all the hills and valleys between. From Catania onward for quite a distance the houses are built of lava, much of it looks like limestone rock, others porous, different colors. All the terracing is lava, the ballasting of the railroad. That part of the country is very depressing when one allows themselves to think what all that lava represents.

At Girgente one begins to see the sulphur piled up everywhere, great blocks ready for shipment. Girgente is one of the old historical cities of Sicily founded by the Greeks. Many wars raged round it and it often changed hands, always through treachery. Like Moia high on a cliff only approachable at one place, the ruins of the largest and finest temples in Sicily stand. There the views are beautiful. In all directions are old castles, sitting like eagles in their nests, high on the crags, witnesses of the times when war was the chief occupation of mankind, for short was the life of any town in the valley. The strength and solidity of the walls make our modern buildings appear like cardboard.

We passed through almond, orange, lemon and olive groves. Some of the olive trees planted by the Saracens are hoary, twisted, gnarled trees, looking as Paton says not unlike the part human trees Dante encountered in the underworld and one can almost hear them groan in their agony when a storm rages through their branches. After a time the country becomes very desolate, it is always hilly but so bleak and barren, not a tree or shrub, only a few stunted cacti. The people look as desolate and hapless as the landscape. What could they look like living in huts dug in a hill-side, the fronts either walled up with lava or thatched, no light except from the doorway, no food but black bread, onions, artichokes or fennels. No fire more than a handful of coals in a pan over which the poor miserable wretches try to warm their hands.

I was glad when we left that dreary scene behind. Nearing Palermo we came again to groves, mountain peaks and beautiful scenery. The new part of the city is beautiful, very wide streets and large airy buildings. The old part of course is narrow and winding, not the steps as in Taormina, Naples and Genoa because the town is on the water front and the mountains a little farther away. In my next letter I will tell about Palermo.

With love,
MARY KATHERINE.

Flitting Time.

We are rushing about now at our house as busy as busy can be. For some of us head for the mountains, and some of us head for the sea. We have filled up the big sartanas for Molly and Amy and Lou; They're stuffed to the brim with creations, and every one of 'em new! Pa wanted to cut down expenses, but mother, dear mother, said nit, For the call of the summer is on us—we must flit, flit, flit!

The dressmaker's working her head off to get the last ruffles all done, For without the glad clothes in midseason there's ne'er an engagement won. We are fussing and fretting and fuming, the tradesmen are kept on the go. There's cutting and slashing and snipping, and trouble and worry and woe. Pa says it ain't worth it's costing; in fact, doesn't like it a bit, But the call of the summer is on us—we must flit, flit, flit!

There's a mountain of baggage all ready, and soon we'll be speeding away. It's something to show those old neighbors when your trunks more than fill up a dray! But the smile that Pa gives is quite sickly, and I think he just muttered "By heck!"

When mother said, "Now you be sure, dear, to send us each day a large check." He'll be toiling away in the city, meeting bills that will give him a fit, But the call of the summer is on us—we must flit, flit, flit!

The Raking of the Green.

Many years ago there was observed a unique custom in the little town of Guilford, Connecticut. On one day in the fall of the year the women of the town assembled on the village green. Each carried a wooden rake, decorated with her favorite color, and each was dressed in white, decked out with colored ribbons. It was a day of fete, and it was called "The Raking of the Green."

Two rival floor coverings. Linoleum and Oilcloth Must Not Be Treated Alike.

Linoleum is made with a mixture of powdered cork, linseed oil, resins and a pigment pressed on burlap between heated rollers. The patterns are painted on it and it is then varnished. Oilcloth is made by applying several layers of coarse paint to burlap or coarse canvas finishing with a fine paint, then painting on the pattern and finally varnishing. It can easily be seen that these cloths, finished as they are with varnish and paint, should not be washed with strong soaps or alkalis, and that a careful oiling now and then will surely be beneficial.

Oilcloths may be kept bright for years if properly varnished each season. The oilcloths should never be scrubbed with a brush, but after being first swept should be cleaned with a large soft cloth and cold or lukewarm water, in which has been dissolved a little borax, dip a flannel cloth in milk and with this wipe the oilcloth. Linoleum may be brightened with a little glue water.

Melt a little ordinary glue in water apply it with a flannel cloth. The linoleum should be clean and dry before rubbing it with the glue water.

GLASS NEEDS TENDER CARE.

Careful Washing and Drying is Absolutely Indispensable.

There is nothing that repays one more for careful washing and drying than glass. First, one must have a basin of warm water, softened with dissolved soap which makes a very good lather. The water must not be too hot, or it will break the glass. Have a basin of clear water to rinse the glass in after washing it, and if a very fine polish be desired on it have a third basin of cold water with a little ammonia in it.

Wash each article separately, rinse it well and dry with a soft glass cloth which should be made of linen, or any fluffy particles will stick to the glass and spoil its bright appearance. When it is washed and dried polish with a leather kept only for the purpose, or with a silk handkerchief or with some soft tissue paper.

For cut glass, if the pattern be at all deep, when washing it use a soft brush with a little soap rubbed on it so that all the crevices of the pattern are thoroughly cleansed. Rinse in clean water and a little household ammonia.

How to Make Paprika Schnitzes. Slices from leg of veal of medium thickness, cut into pieces, say three by four inches—or any size to suit. Salt and pepper the pieces; roll in flour, fry light brown on both sides. Have your fat hot before putting the meat in to fry. In frying veal it is nice to put a little butter with your frying fat. When brown cover with water (hot), add a small onion, a few slices of lemon, a bay leaf, a sprig of parsley, a dessertspoonful of vinegar and several good shakes of paprika. Cover, and let all boil till the meat is tender. If the gravy boils down too much, add a little more water and let it cook until there is just enough gravy. Serve on a hot platter with the gravy strained over the meat. It is a good plan to taste the gravy, while boiling, for salt, etc.

A half hour will do for this.

Care of Table Cutlery.

All table cutlery should be washed as soon as possible after it has been used to cleanse the knives and carving-forks of grease, the latter being afterward well dried and the prongs rubbed with knife-powder, while in cases where knives are cleaned in a machine this duty should always, if possible, be entrusted to the same person, a point which considerably lengthens the working powers of the knife-machine. Knives must never be kept in a cupboard close to hot fire or near the kitchen stove, as this will cause the handles to crack. When not in use cutlery should be rubbed with mutton fat and wrapped in brown paper.

Mocha Cake.

Six eggs, two cups bar (fruit) sugar, one-half cup lukewarm water, two cups flour, one heaping teaspoon baking powder. Cream yolks and sugar together, add water, then flour and baking powder, then the whites beaten thoroughly. Bake in moderate oven.

Butter for above cake.—One-half cup lard, creamed. Add all the icing sugar it will take in one tablespoon cream, one teaspoon vanilla, one and one-half pounds almonds, blanched, dried and browned in oven, then roll nuts. Cut cake in small squares, spread with icing and roll in nuts.

A Useful Hint.

When washing painted walls or wood put about two cents' worth of painters' size (previously dissolved in hot water) in a pail of water, and apply with a soft cloth. The dirt will be very quickly removed and the paint improved in appearance. Wet the bottom part of the paint before commencing at the top. This prevents the water leaving dirty marks on the lower part.

Removal of Stains.

Stains made by medicines and liniment may be successfully removed by means of liquid ammonia, a little of the spirit being poured into a saucer, the stained garment laid across it, and the spot dabbed repeatedly with the fingers until it disappears. It should then be rinsed in tepid water and washed with strong soapuds in the usual way.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy. After years of backache suffering. Days of misery, nights of unrest. The distress of urinary troubles. To find relief and cure? No reason why any reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases, whether of a disease of the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous colitis), bladder, stomach or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections it is often successful in effecting cures.

"The Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases—those arising from weakness, over-exhaustion, and frequent indulgence in sexual excess.
It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nerve. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulae of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.
The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into "Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Peppermint, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorize stomach, liver and bowels.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr.
Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerves, all tissue, and all blood elements.

The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, causes nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissue, bringing about renewed strength, vigor and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—generally acting on the system. For positive local help, use as well

YEARNING FOR OLD FRIENDS.

Gray-Headed Man Wants to Read Boy-hood Favorites.

"If I were in the publishing business," said the gray-headed man, "I'd get out a school reader and put into it some of the old poems and stories that were favorites forty years ago. It would do the youngsters good to get acquainted with that ancient and honorable literature, while as for their parents, who sometimes look through a school book seeking in vain for a familiar echo of their own childhood days, why, they would get a whiff of the inspiration of youth that would last at least 15 years off their age. I'd put in that poem about 'Make Me a Child Again Just for Tonight,' and that other one where the little girl wants to know if 'God isn't on the ocean just the same as on the land?' Then there are 'The Gambler's Wife,' 'Lewellyn and His Dog,' 'We Are Seven,' and 'Lazy Ned.' I'd print all these old gems and sandwich them in between the speeches of Patrick Henry and Daniel Webster, and that old classic about the contented boy who had no kick against life as he found it, even though he hadn't even a turnip to eat. Maybe my book, when I had finished compiling it, wouldn't find favor with a modern school board, but I'll warrant you it would strike a sympathetic chord in the breast of many a reader, old and young."

LINK WITH THE DEAD PAST.

Woman Has Handkerchief Stained with Blood of Charles I.

An interesting Derbyshire "link with the past" is recalled by Mr. J. H.
Sharpley of Hatfield college, Doncaster, in a letter to the Sheffield Telegraph. He says: "In 1872, when a boy, staying at Hulland ward, Derbyshire, I called on an old woman, Elizabeth Durose, then 97, widow of a farmer, who told me that her grandmother, when a girl, had known a man—a distant relative—who had witnessed the execution of Charles I. The old woman then took out of a corner cupboard an old prayer-book, bound in black leather, which was, I fancy, of the time of Queen Anne, for I remember it had a frontispiece picturing a parson in gown and bands, and wearing a long wig, saying prayers in a 'three-decker.' Opening it at the form of service for January 30, she showed me a piece of coarse linen, of the color of a dead leaf, which she said was a portion of a handkerchief which had been dipped in the king's blood, and was given to her grandmother by the above eye-witness. When it first passed into her possession it was nearly entire, but her children had played with it, and this was all she had managed to preserve."—Derby (England)

Wolf in Italian Town.

It is not often that European eyes witness the spectacle of a wolf trotting leisurely through the streets in broad daylight, and with little apparent concern. Such an incident happened recently in the Italian town of Anzanosso. The wolf went sniffing first in the direction of one house and then of another as he went along.
Passing by the hospital, an attendant of sporting instincts saw the game, and, rushing for a gun, gave chase.
Before long he had a chance for a shot, which hit the wolf, and, following this up with another, the beast was slain.
Its presence in the town is accounted for by the theory that the beast had been hunting over night away from his haunts, and after eating to satiety and sleeping through the night, was making his way back to his lair.

Aldrich and Whitman.

T. B. Aldrich knew Walt Whitman and liked him personally, although he would never admit that Whitman was a poet except in here and there a single phrase. Many a time has the present writer endeavored to convert Mr.
Aldrich from this state of heathen blindness as to Whitman's genius, but the debates used to end illogically with Mr. Aldrich's delightful story of a certain $9 which Whitman once borrowed from him—magnificently, but alas, irrevocably—in Pfaff's restaurant in Broadway.—Atlantic Monthly.

Prescriptions Against Electric Fires.

If your dwelling is electrically lighted never place wood, clothes or other flammable material against the wires, meters or switches; never use an electric wire as a clothesline, and see to it that your dwelling is kept free from rats, as these pests often gnaw the insulation from the wires.
The amount of loss from "electric fires" in the United States in one year, according to the Saturday Evening Post, is $15,000,000.

Senator Hale's Story Gives Neat Rebuke to Congressman.

Senator Hale had been inveighing at a dinner against long speeches.
"But, senator," said a congressman,
"you can't accuse me of ever having made too long a speech, can you?" Senator Hale smiled.
"Perhaps not," he said; "and again,
But did you ever hear about the temperance lecturer? No?"
"Well, you must know that there was a temperance lecturer in Maine who came to Ellsworth and lectured.
He hit out pretty hard from the shoulder at these so-called moderate drinkers and at the end of his remarks an Ellsworth man took him aside and said in an aggrieved tone:
"Look here, Jim; I am a moderate drinker, as all the town knows, and to many people it is going to seem as if a good part of your lecture was pointed at me. What did you want to do it for, Jim? You never saw me with more on board than I could carry."
"What's that?" said the temperance lecturer.
"You never saw me with a bigger load than I could carry, did you?"
The lecturer frowned.
"Well, no," he said, slowly, "but I have seen you when I thought you'd have done better to go twice for it."

INCREASING LENGTH OF LIFE.

What Medical Science Has Done for the Human Race.

Reviewing the progress of medicine during the nineteenth century, Dr. John S. Billings, United States army, has shown that deaths of women from childbirth decreased during that period from 10 to 20 in 1,000 to 5 in 1,000, and that from all causes the deaths in New York city fell from between 35 and 40 in 1,000 to less than 20 in 1,000. He recalls the fact that 100 years ago yellow fever was epidemic in New York and Philadelphia for two years. For 30 years the disease has been almost unknown throughout the whole country; also that in 1800 the majority of persons one met were pitted with smallpox—the survivors of a much greater number—while now there are physicians who have never seen a case of small-pox; and that in the Napoleonic and revolutionary wars more died from disease than from wounds, while now hospital gangrene is unknown. Statistics show that in Chicago during the last 35 years the average age at death has increased from 12 to 32 years.

Potatoes in Cheese Sauce.

M. E. Southworth gives the following recipe for patatas con queso (potatoes baked in cheese sauce): Put two tablespoonfuls of crumbled cheese, or potted cheese, in a sauc-pan with two tablespoonfuls of butter; when melted add two tablespoonfuls of flour and rub until smooth and creamy. Season with salt, paprika, and a dash of tabasco, and then add slowly one and one-half cups of milk, stirring until thoroughly blended. Remove from the fire. Peel six large, firm potatoes, and slice rather thin and chop one sweet bell-pepper.
Put a layer of the potatoes in a baking dish, and sprinkle with the chopped pepper, then another layer of potatoes, and so on until the dish is filled.
Over all pour the thickened cheese sauce, and sprinkle broken English walnut meats and bits of butter on top, and bake until the potatoes are thoroughly cooked.

inches to the gallon.

geese, swan or wild duck between Sept. 1 and April 10 and at no other time.

viding that in season from Nov. 15 to Dec. 1 only one male deer can be killed in one season by a hunter. No other killing of rabbits or hares between Oct.

15 and Dec. 1 of each year in any manner except with the aid of a ferret.

An act changing the hunting season for pheasants from Oct. 1 to Dec. 1 and

STREETS OF THE TOWN.

The streets of the town come in for a full share of discussion these days. For a summer season they have never been worse, owing to the weather and not to the town fathers. There are those who assert that the trouble should be dealt with in a radical way. The question is being considered by Mechanicsburg and that town will vote at an early date whether to create a debt of $60,000 for improved streets. It would cost more than that sum to give Gettysburg improved streets. In the face of the present debt it is believed the citizens would not be willing to create a large debt making a long and heavy burden of taxation. The debt creating method besides is not the one for the getting of improved streets, but the matter should be put up to the citizens in the proposition, endure your old streets until you are ready to pay the cash for the best kind. To put this proposition in legal shape, the town council could first adopt the granolith as the street of the future. There ought to be no question on this point, experience in cities and towns having established that fact and the very best only costs but from one-fourth one third more than others. Then Council could follow with a relieving ordinance in the matter of building such streets. Such a relieving ordinance ought not to be compulsory one except upon petition of either a majority or perhaps two thirds of the property holders of any square. Upon such request a granolith street should be put down and the entire cost assessed from abutting property holders. This is the method followed in many towns and places. The people get good streets just as fast as they want them and if they suffer from poor ones it is their own fault. Our broadest streets are about 44 feet wide from gutter to gutter. The average width of properties is 30 feet. An ordinance such as indicated upon petition of majority in a square would require the owner of every 30 foot lot to pay the cost of the street for half its width or 22 feet. Granolith is being put down in some cities at $1.50 a square yard and not over $2.00. At these rates the owner of a 30 foot lot could have the best kind of a street in front of his premises at a cost of from $131 to $146, and that expenditure would add many times that amount to the value of his property. If such a relieving ordinance was in existence perhaps some of our public spirited citizens would make a start, or an example on their squares and the principal streets might become paved quickly. This method would place the cost of good streets upon the property owners whose properties would be increased in value thereby. Meanwhile there should be no more money spent on the present streets than to keep them in some kind of repair.

ABUSE OF RIGHTS BY AUTOS.

The distressing accident caused by an auto to a carriage in the Becker funeral cortege told of in another column is shocking to every one's sense of decency. That the occupants fortunately escaped serious injury does not make the act of those in the auto any less offensive. The number of the machine has been secured and it is hoped that the owner will be taught a wholesome lesson of respect for the rights of others. That the driver of an auto forced his way into a funeral procession and caused a conveyance to be upset containing near relatives of the deceased is a species of lawlessness which can not be patiently contemplated. Too many of those who ride on the roads in automobiles seem to consider that they have absolute rights to the road. They forget that their rights are in common with all other users of the road and that the use of the road must be such as will assure safety to all other users. Such assurance is destroyed by reckless and fast running of autos. The fast running of autos, as a menace to the public, is a species of lawlessness and has been so legally considered in many States. Those who offend and do not have a care to enjoy the roads in such a way as to preserve the safety of the road to all others should be made to feel the big stick of the law.

Our readers have been following with a lively interest the journeys of Mary Katherine through Southern Europe. Her letters are most refreshing, seeing sights of the old country through the bright eyes of an American girl born in Adams county. The second page contains one of her letters and the bad manners of the aristocracy on the other side are deservedly scored.

On the third page will be found a partial list of new laws of the last Legislature of Pa. and the same will be completed in following issues.

Butcher Business Grows.

Arendtsville, July 22.—We notice in the Fairfield items that less than fifty years ago that town had only one butcher and now has three. Fifty-one years ago when your correspondent came to Arendtsville Moses Raffensperger then conducted a butcher shop. He killed two hogs a week and with the assistance of Michael Hoffman, Sr., they would peddle two days each week with two wagons, start early in the morning, drive hard all day and occasionally were not able to sell all their meat. Now we have two large butcher establishments equipped with all the latest and best improved machinery. The one is owned by and conducted by Messrs. Ira S. and Edward Orner, brothers and the other by Messrs. Wm. W. and Geo. E. Boyer, brothers. The two firms kill from 6 to 12 hogs a week besides quite a number of calves and sheep and during the fall quite a lot of hogs. They turn out seven wagons three days each week during the summer and we frequently see some of their wagons sold out and home by 12 or 1 o'clock at noon.

Messrs. A. F. Trostel & Son have purchased two new steam threshers.

Geo. L. Culp was obliged to kill a valuable horse. It had one of its legs broken by being kicked by one of his mules.

Willie and James Crum caught fourteen eels on outlines, some of the largest measuring 30 inches long.

Mrs. Hannah M. Toot and her daughter, Miss Mattie J. Toot left here last week and expect to spend the summer in some of the western states with their relatives.

Messrs. C. H. Klepper, I. K. Arendt, Geo. H. Knauss, James and Albert Cole spent several days last week in Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Mark spent a few days last week at Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Newcomer of Harney, Md., Daniel Wolff of Boston and brother Bruce and sister Lizzie of Spring Run were recent visitors at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Wolf in this place.

Last Saturday the game of base ball played by the Fairfield and Arendtsville teams resulted in favor of Fairfield 6 to 5. The game was played at Arendtsville.

The raspberries and blackberries are an excellent crop this season.

The farmers in this locality had elegant weather for grain harvesting last week and they report the crop the best for many years.

Catalpa Speciosa Trees.

This will be the future timber of this country. The railroads have invested millions of dollars in this timber for cross ties and telegraph poles for the future. This timber is the native forest tree of the lower Wabash Valley. In 6 years this timber will grow large enough for posts and rails, which will last, exposed to all kinds of weather, from 85 to 90 years. Split shingles on houses in its native country last over 100 years. These trees while growing, are clad in myriad robes of beautiful foliage of flowers. Every new home in the county should have a few of these trees in the yard as they are fast growers. We will have a few thousand of these valuable trees which can be transplanted from our gardens in September and October, 1907. We secured a few seeds at a big expense last winter. We will sell the trees at $3 per 100, less than a 100, 5 cts. each. We will have at the same time 80,000 fine large Ginseng Plants which we will sell at 50 cents per 100. The above in city nurseries are quoted at $10 per 100. Every person should assist in introducing this long lasting timber in this country. Call at our gardens, or address

Court Files an Opinion.

In the estate of Vincent O'Bold deceased, Judge S. McT. Swope filed an opinion last Thursday sustaining the auditor's finding in favor of claims of Mrs. Matilda Little of McSherrytown and of Dr. R. N. Meisenholder of Hanover. The penalty for failure to pay the collateral tax in one year was reduced from 12 per cent to 6 per cent making a difference of $49.07. Mrs. Smith, the sole heir, realized after the payment of all debts over $100,000.

P. H. Gladfelter Left no Will.

York County's richest man and Gettysburg College's best friend left no will and the laws will divide his estate estimated at $3,000,000. Last Thursday W. L. Gladfelter, his only son and the decedent's right hand man in his business enterprises was appointed administrator by the Register of York County and gave the largest bond ever given in York County, in $4,000,000 to cover the personal estate alone. It is understood that all the heirs will pool their interests and that all the corporations in which the father was interested will be continued along the same conservative lines of their late founder.

This is the time when it pays to spend money for Dry Goods here. Almost every line in our stock is larger now than the usual for this season of the year owing to the temptation we had months ago to buy goods to save the advances.

We can better afford, however, to sacrifice profits, and in some case part of the cost, than to carry goods over into another season, so that NOW we begin our CLEAN UP all over the store. You cannot come wrong, as

"THE PLAY'S THE THING"

By EMMETT CAMPBELL HALL.

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"The public," John Kennedy, of the Independent Theatrical Company, Limited, announced pompously to the newsman men, "is growing tired of poor shows by people who have nothing but a reputation—gotten almost any old way. What they want is a good show, a good play with good actors, and the name of the actor or actress doesn't have the value of a last year's door-check."

It was in following out this plan, therefore, that Kennedy picked out Marshall Madden as his leading man for "The Cottage and the Studio," a simple little tale of struggle and heartache, of strength and the performance of hard duty.

"But say, I don't know a thing about this artistic atmosphere of Paris, and all that, you know," Madden objected when his selection was announced to him. His strong point was "atmosphere" and "local color," and he had been playing for years in dramas of the west. "I have been fooling with guns and spurs so long," he continued, "that I am pretty near a real cow-puncher. Hot art student I'll make."

"That's all right," Kennedy said, soothingly. "You'll make good, all right. As to the atmosphere, I'm going to have you run over to Paris and acquire it. You'll start at once, and when you get there, you fix up a studio and join some class—just live the thing, you know."

"All right," Madden agreed. "How about the leading lady? She is supposed to be an art student also, you know."

"Haven't decided on one just yet, though I have one in mind," Kennedy replied.

The result of all of which was that some four weeks later Marshall Madden was established, humbly, as befitted his purse and the part he was to play in the next winter's production, as a full-fledged art student in Paris, under the name of Weldon Hampton.

It was just a month after his arrival in Paris that Madden met Elsie Proctor at a little students' gathering, and from that instant the days to Madden were golden.

In the frank, easy air of the studios they soon became far more intimate in a short time than would have been the case under any other circumstances, but at all times there was about the girl a certain shy reserve that checked too rapid an advance. To Madden she appeared as the one girl of his life, and she was evidently not indifferent to the big, handsome chap, though she could not resist the temptation to tease.

That was one of her most charming traits, although at times it drove him to the brink of despair.

"Why won't you be direct with me, girl?" he pleaded. "You must see how much I care—don't play with me," but the girl would only smile inscrutably.

"You are very large for a plaything, are you not?" she would say, laughingly, and he would go away raging inwardly, and occasionally boiling over, to the hurt of his studio furniture.

By and by she grew more gentle, and confided to him some of the details of her life—how, as a child in her poor, cramped and bare New England home she had longed for some of the beautiful things of life;
how in that hard soil her artistic talent had struggled toward blossom, and how at last she had succeeded in obtaining a position in New York which enabled her by the closest economy to finally come to Paris and take the course for which she had longed. It would have to be short, however, she told him; she would have to go home early in the coming fall, to again secure her position. A widowed mother and two smaller children required her support.

"Why, that might have been Jes-sie's story!" he exclaimed aloud.

"Then she has my sympathy, though I do not know her," Elsie said.
"Who is she?"

He flushed a little, thinking how near he had come to giving away his secret.

"Oh, just a character in a play," he said.

"And 'the play's the thing,' isn't it?" she murmured, her eyes fixed upon a distant point.

Madden was startled. Had she penetrated his make-believe? Almost at once, however, she changed the subject, and he gradually grew reassured.

As the time for his return to New York drew nearer, Madden pressed his suit with more and more ardor, only to be kept gently at a safe distance.

At last the night before the day on which he was to leave arrived. He had called to see her, and found her with suspiciously bright eyes. Her handkerchief was crumpled into a little damp ball in her hand, and her slender form drooped wearily.

Madden seated himself upon the couch beside her, and took her hands in his.

"I am going to-morrow, dear," he whispered. "Will you not say you care a little for me—that you might,
some day?"

"I—I do care, Weldon," the girl said, slowly; "care more than I have let you see. But you—is it real to you?"

It was his cue in the last act of

"The Cottage and the Studio" that she had unknowingly spoken, but in the stress of his emotion he did not notice it. Unconsciously, however, he took it up.

"Is it real? How can you ask that, sweetheart?" he cried, and pressed the hand he held to his lips. "Can't you see, feel, how great is my love for you, how great my need? Oh, sweetheart, I love you, love you! Will you not marry me, darling?"

His arms were about her, and he drew her gently toward him.

"If I could but know—only know—" she whispered, and they were the lines that "Jessie" should speak.

"Prove me as you will, my darling," he urged, and tried to draw her closer, but the girl wrenched herself free and sprang to her feet.

There is no need to prove you further; you are a good actor," she said, bitterly.

For a moment he gazed at her uncomprehendingly, then the truth burst upon him that he had been going through the scene, word for word, of the parting in "The Cottage and the Studio."

"But, how—how did you—" he began, bewildered, but the girl walked to the other end of the room.

"Please go away," she said, coldly, and he rose unsteadily to his feet. "I hope your rehearsal has been of benefit," she added, mockingly, as, with downcast eyes he stumbled from her presence.

What could it mean? He asked himself the question a thousand times, and arrived at no answer. Only one thing stood out clearly, and that was that he had lost her, the only girl he had ever loved—that she regarded him as one who would take advantage of a pretended love to use a girl as a lay-figure on which to hang the tinsel rags of the stage.

Upon his arrival in New York he found a call for a meeting of the new company, to take place in a week. He threw the sheet from him with a groan.

"I can't do it!" he cried, but the instinct of the actor was strong in Madden, and promptly at the hour named in the call he entered the theater.

Kennedy, coatless, hot, and beaming, seized upon him.

"Hello, old man!" he exclaimed, joyously. "Come on and meet the bunch. Say, I've got the greatest ever, and no paper-house in that, either. If we don't make 'em sit up—come on—here's our leading lady."

Madden turned, and looked into the eyes of Elsie Proctor.

"Miss Bates, this is Mr. Marshall Madden—excuse me, please!" he said, and rushed away.

The girl held out her hand, and smiled.

"How are you, Mr. Hampton," she said, and laughed an uncertain little laugh.

"You—you knew all the time?" he gasped. "Kennedy sent you to Paris, too—why, Oh, why didn't you tell me, girl?" She could not but see the pain in his eyes, and her own softened.

"It—did it matter, much?" she asked.

"No, not to you. But to me—it has taken all the gladness out of life for me. Of course I will resign my part in this company—I know what your feelings must be at the bare sight of me, but I despise myself much more than you can possibly," he said, slowly, and turned away.

She came nearer to him, and laid a hand gently upon his arm.

"Please don't," she said, softly.

"You—you want me to stay?" he stammered, while a light of joy flamed in his eyes.

"Yes," she answered, so softly that he could hardly catch the words. "I think we could act that parting so well, on the stage, dearest."

And inasmuch as they happened to be standing behind an opportune piece of scenery, and the other members of the company were gathered about Kennedy at the other side of the stage, no one saw what happened then except the old janitor, and he will never tell.

To Make Study of Indians.

The Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology of Harvard is making arrangements to send a party this summer to study the Nez Perce Indians in Idaho. The effort will be to learn something of the language and customs of the tribe, about which little is known, as they are a secretive people. H. J. Spinden, an instructor in the department of anthropology, will be in charge of the work, and will have as his assistant R. R. Hellman, a student in the medical school. They will leave Cambridge immediately after the close of the college year and will spend about six weeks in the work, after which Mr. Spinden will go to Washington.

Rapid Rise of American Boy.

Ramsford D. Buckman, of Worcester, Mass., recently appointed naval adviser to the sultan of Turkey, is now in command of the fleet which guards the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles, with the rank of admiral. His first experience as a sailor was gained on the great lakes, where he was a cabin boy. Now, at 40, he is an admiral.

Much Titled Man.

Lord Cope, who recently entered his forty-sixth year, enjoys two earldoms, two vicecounties and three baronies in the peerage of Ireland, but he has no seat in that country and is himself of English descent.

YIELDING TO YEARS.

Architectural Marvels of Middle Ages Showing Signs of Decay.

Almost every day, now, the foreign dispatches report the partial fall or the dangerous weakening of one of the famous buildings of Europe. Today it is the Vatican that is beguinning to crumble, yesterday it was the Alhambra, and a dozen such announcements can be remembered before one gets back even to the recent day when the great tower in Venice came down, with a crash which resounded throughout the whole civilized world because all of that world knew about the tower.

There is really some excuse for fearing that the architectural marvels of the middle ages are nearing the limit of their endurance, and that, unless they are subjected to repairs and restorations which not many of them are likely to receive, the time will soon come when people will have to do without these visible reminders of the part of the past which forms no large a part of our history and literature. This will be a loss, indeed, and yet the restorer and the repairer are almost as much to be feared as ruthless time, and one does not call them in too eagerly, even when somebody else must pay their bills.—N. Y.

AGAINST THE MIDDLE.

Why Bill Cut Out Liver and Bacon
When His Luck Turned.

When Bill, the ranchman, came from Denver to New York to play the races he put up at one of the most expensive hotels in the city and took one of the most expensive rooms.
Then he went broke. The proprietor of the hotel and the clerk held a private consultation.

"We will let him stay here," they decided, "but from now on we will feed him liver and bacon until he pays his bill. Nothing does he get in this house from now on but liver and bacon."

They fed Bill liver and bacon for breakfast, dinner and supper for about three weeks, then his luck turned.
He forthwith walked out to a strange cafe to get something to eat. He looked over the bill of fare.

"What's this in the middle?" he asked. "Liver and bacon?"

"Yes, sir," the waiter answered.

"Give me everything on the bill of fare both ways from liver and bacon," ordered Bill.

Pious Hope.

Forty years ago the wickedest person in Allen county, Ohio, was Old Man Ellison, a well-to-do farmer. Not until he approached three-score and ten did he mellow down, and then but a little. Once when attending a raising he soliloquized thus on his own decadence:

"The ole man's been putty tuff, boys. He's rassed with some mighty hard cases, the ole man has. But it's about over. The ole devil is after him hard an' fas', the ole devil is, an' by 'n' by he'll get him. But he won't get him long, the ole devil won't. By 'n' by he'll be glad to fetch the ole man back."

"Well," spoke up Bill Petit, his fiercest foe, "all I hope is when he does he'll forget where he found you."

Jealousy.

"Talking about Creole jealousy," said the observant man. "I saw a specimen of Chicago jealousy the other night that had it beaten to a frazzle. A handsome fellow was at dinner with two girls, when a young woman came in, caught a corner of the tablecloth, and yanked the whole tableful of dishes and dinner off onto the floor, then walked out of the room."

"What did the man do? Followed her and made friends with her again.
She was his fiancée. He gave her a $400 diamond ring afterward, they said. If she had been his wife he would in all probability have beaten her instead of giving her a present."

Impetuosity.

In spite of generations of reckless combative Irish gentlemen, it is odd that we have still to go to American literature for the classical instances of impetuosity with firearms. This is a reproach to Irish authors, which should touch them closely. Irish gentlemen were killing and wounding each other on sight almost for centuries before America was heard of,
and yet it was left for Bret Harte and Mark Twain and John Hay to fix in the far west the type of fire-eater who carried his honor in his belt.—T. P.'s Weekly.

In a French Restaurant.

There is a certain restaurant in town of quite ambitious pretensions, but not always successful realizations.
In fact it may be described as French on a Hibernian footing. Two people who dined there the other evening were finishing their dessert when the waiter approached. With napkin in one hand and tray poised on the other, he inquired in his best Gaelic accents:

"And will yez both have dimmy-tassies?"

Not Worth the Effort.

"Look out!" exclaimed the man who had seen another bravely rescued from the water. "Handle that fellow carefully or he might revive."

"Brute!" ejaculated the rescuers.
"Brute, nothing," rejoined the first speaker; "I saw him rocking the boat."

3RD DIST. S. S. CONVENTION

HELD AT ST. LUKE'S UNION CHURCH NEAR REDLAND.

Topics of Importance to the Sunday School Discussed at the Sessions.

The fourth annual convention of the Third District of Sunday Schools convened in St. Luke's Union Church near Red Land on Sunday, July 14, 1907.

Afternoon Session.

Music by the choir followed by Devotional services by Rev. E. Carl Mumford, reading the 10th chapter of St. Mark's Gospel, followed with prayer by Rev. J. J. Hill, of Littlestown.

Music. Then the first topic on the program, "The Importance of Bible Study" was discussed by Rev. J. J. Hill. The speaker by way of introducing the topic gave the early history of man and the importance of doing God's Will. We live and move in the Scripture. It is the foundation on which we build our lives mentally, physically and spiritually. It is where character is formed. The benefits of Bible Study is to teach doctrine. We must fix some principle in our life that shall last forever and be a light unto those whose way seem dark and dreary. The scripture is profitable for doctrine, reproof, correction, instruction in righteousness, so that man may be perfectly prepared for life. We must believe in the Bible and let the light shine among men. The benefits of the study of the Bible is to learn its purpose, why it was written, how it was written, who wrote it. Another reason for study is to get the fundamental principles out of the Bible. All our power we get out of the study of the Bible. In order to be interested in the Bible we must not only study it in the Sunday School but every day in the week, as it is written. Heaven and earth shall pass away, but not My word. Study the Bible and we will be better prepared for life.

Music. The next discussion "The Sunday School's Mission" was very plainly outlined to the convention by Rev. J. W. Long of the M. E. Church of Littlestown. The first Sunday School how it was formed and from that school the mission was to employ the time on Sunday in the study of the Bible. To get every one interested in the Sunday School and take part. Now what shall be taught when children are in Sunday School. Teach the principles of the Bible. Teach the lives of men, historical places. The teacher is expected to know the principles of the Bible before attempting to teach them to the children. Mission is not only to bring into the Sunday School, but to love the church. The Sunday School is the child of the church. Any one who will love the Sunday School will love the church. Another mission is to influence the lives of boys and girls in every day life. Songs should be sweet and an incense to God. In closing his remarks he said that the Sunday School should teach the principles and truths of the Bible.

Music. Remarks were then given on the "S. S. Mission" by Rev. Lindaman, Rev. Mumford, Abia Smucker, Harry E. Bair, D. C. Rudisill, Mervin Wintrobe, W. A. Burgoon and Rev. Hill, after which the president of the district gave the statistics for year 1907: Number of teachers and officers, 229; number of scholars, 1894; number in cradle roll department, 60; followed by the roll call of delegates from the schools in the district: Centenary M. E., Abia Smucker, W. A. Burgoon; Redeemer's Ref. absent; St. Paul's, Littlestown, Mary Staub, Mabel Mehring; St. John's, William Menges, Elva Crouse; Christ, William Stansbury; Grace, Earl Rudisill, Edward Weikert; St. Luke's, Chas. Hough, Mrs. Shanerbrook; Mt. Pleasant, C. W. Hershey, William Unger; St. Paul's, McSherrytown, Mrs. Geo. Bender, Mrs. Emory Bollinger; St. James', Clayton Robraugh, John Spangler; Mt. Olivet, absent; Pine Grove, absent; St. Paul's, Harney, Oneda Reck, Edna Slagle; Mt. Joy, Edna Scott, Ruby Walker; St. Mark's, Blanche Benner, I. Willie Appler.

This was followed by the election of officers for the ensuing year of 3rd District: President, Mervin Wintrobe; Vice Presidents, D. C. Rudisill, John D. Schwartz, John A. Gobrecht, H. S. Reigle, Geo. F. Dutters and Emory Starnes; Secretary, Harry E. Bair; Treasurer, Abia Smucker. These officers constitute the Executive Committee.

Collection, $2.50. Benediction by Rev. F. S. Lindaman

Evening Session.

Song service conducted by John D. Schwartz, devotional services by Wm. Stansbury, reading St. John 21, followed by prayer.

Discussion "What the Sunday School Can Do to Promote Sabbath Observance," by Rev. Mumford. Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath. The Sabbath should be observed as a day of rest from physical work but not from spiritual work, so as to have communion with God. In the Sunday School the true idea, the true meaning of the Sabbath should be taught. Many a Sunday School scholar changed the life of some one by telling what the Sabbath really meant and how it should be observed. The same topic was further discussed by Prof. W. A. Burgoon. The church will never meet with God unless Sabbath observance is done. Keep the day sacred and holy. Keep ideals before the children of the Sunday School. We as Sunday School workers are getting away from the ideals of our fathers. The idea of the young people today is that they may go to Sunday School in the morning and do anything in the afternoon, such as playing ball, loafing, etc. The breaking of the Sabbath is largely due to European countries, to foreigners. We should always reverence God's word, learn the commandments, practice them at all times in return for God's mercy. God has a right to demand of us that we keep the Sabbath holy and meditate on His goodness in place of visitation, excursions, revelings. The law of the Sabbath was made for us. Now go and obey His law. Physically it is good to rest on the Sabbath from the toil of the week. But we are to be in the Spirit of God on the Lord's Day. No man has ever attempted to set aside any of God's laws without an injury to himself. If we keep the Sabbath we come to know God. The Sunday School can insist upon a careful study of Bible. There is not enough time in Sunday School given to the study of the Bible. Have good moral teachers. Teachers who are living examples for the rising generation. Provide good reading. A good way to observe the Sabbath is to have the Sunday School open every Sunday of the year. Make the Sabbath a day of recreation and not of sinfulness.

Collection was then lifted which amounted to $4.37. Total collection $7.17. Expenses for programs, postage, stationery, $1.65.

This was followed by music after which the last discussion was listened to very attentively. "What the Sunday School can do for Temperance" by Rev. F. S. Lindaman. Temperance has a far reaching meaning. Those who die in the state of intoxication will go down to eternal destruction. We deal not only with ourselves but the influence it exerts upon others. The Sunday School teacher must show the way to the children of indulging. It robs a man of his spiritual and physical principles. Those who die in a drunken state die without hope or without God. Never take the first drink and you need not take the second. Always be sober and industrious. That drink is not found in that bottom less pit to quench the faulty thirst. To be Christians we must surrender to God and be useful and respected citizens.

Music. Benediction by Rev. Carl Mumford. The Convention adjourned. MERVIN WINTROBE, Sec. 3rd District.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

RHEUMATISM

Old Mr. Rheumatism hangs on tight and bites and pinches when he takes hold.

LAWRENCE TUSCANY.

I know better. It's that over worked and over crowded stomach giving the kidneys part of its work and the kidneys can't do it. I found this out with Cooper's New Discovery. It puts the stomach in shape, that's all it does, and yet I have seen thousands of people get rid of rheumatism by taking it. That is why I am positive that rheumatism is caused by stomach trouble. Here is a sample of letters I get every day on the subject.

"For a long time I have been a victim of sciatica and inflammatory rheumatism, and my suffering has been too great to describe. For weeks I lay helpless with every joint in my body so tender and sore that I could not bear to move. The slightest touch would cause me the greatest agony. Several doctors treated me but they failed entirely. I tried many remedies but nothing seemed to reach my case, so I continued to lay helpless. My kidneys and stomach were affected also. I could eat but little, digest less and gradually my strength left. I lost flesh rapidly." "I began the use of the famous Cooper medicines of which I heard so much. To my surprise and delight I improved immediately, and after using several bottles I felt like another person. My strength and appetite returned. The pain and soreness left me and now I feel better than I have for months." Lawrence Tuscany, 1122 Aldrich Ave., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

South Mountain Oil and Development Company

A Corporation Organized to Search for Oil, Gas, Copper and Other Minerals on Large Tract of Land in Hamiltonban Twp., Adams Co., Pa.

Holdings of Company Consist of 1786 Acres

Located 3 Miles Above Orrtanna

Oil is the greatest and surest fortune maker the world has ever known. An oil company gets the product from the ground at an expense of about 5 cents per barrel and oil today is worth about $1.75 per barrel.

Robt. Rawlins, an oil expert, after examining the Adams County tract said, "I observed a scum on the surface of the water. It reflected the color of petroleum. A paper spread on the surface of the water where this scum appeared would burn while still wet. The paper must have absorbed oil. A bottle containing a little oil collected from certain springs certainly contained petroleum. I found several of the springs and streams contained gas, this gas I recognized as similar to what I have found in oil fields. Many oil fields of the world have been located by the appearance of oil on the surface of the water. And I believe that there is a subteranean oil strata."

Capital of the Company is 100,000 shares at $5 per share. Only a limited amount of stock is being offered, just enough for development purposes. A quantity of this stock has been sold in Connecticut and other distant points.

Work Has Begun

15,000 feet of lumber is ready for the first derrick. Contract for drilling is closed. Machinery is arriving and it is a matter of days until the drill begins on its voyage of discovery. Preparations have been made to go down about 3,000 feet.

Many Adams County people have invested their money far from home and sometimes lost it.

Here is a chance to spend money to help discover the natural resources of the country and if the drill opens up fortunes you can have the satisfaction of not only having aided in the development of the home county but also enjoying a share in what is found.

A small amount of the capital stock is offered to Adams County people at $3 a share, par value $5, for a limited period.
